House boundaries plan in limbo

by Tony Fyffe
BSN MANAGING EDITOR

FRANKFORT — Lawrence County would have a new state representative under a House redistricting plan approved last week by the House last week, but it's unlikely that the bill will become law during this session of the General Assembly.

The plan, filed as House Bill 2, was approved 53-46 in the House and sent to the Senate, where President Robert Stivers has said action that action on a redistricting plan is not likely until the next regular session.

The bill would put all of Lawrence County into the 100th House District, which is currently represented by Democrat Kevin Sinnette of Ashland. The 100th District would also include part of Boyd County.

Lawrence County is presently in the 99th District, which is represented by Democrat Rocky Adkins and also includes Elliott and parts of Rowan and Boyd counties.

The new 99th District would be

Lawrence County attorney responds to CVE incident

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

LOUISA — Lawrence County Attorney Mike Hogan responded Monday to an incident in which a Kentucky Commercial Vehicle Enforcement officer was charged with fourth-degree assault stemming from the Feb. 21 arrest of the owner of three coal trucks that were cited for traffic violations.

In an interview with The Big Sandy News, Hogan said that he has a completely different story of the incident.

Bobby J. "Bub" Adkins Jr., owner of BJJR Trucking of Fort Gay, W.Va., is charged in an indictment issued last week with license to be in possession; no registration receipt; failure to produce insurance card; second-degree disorderly conduct; menacing; resisting arrest; third-degree assault of a police officer or probation officer and obstructing governmental operations.

According to a police report, Adkins pulled over at a traffic stop during a coal truck inspection, became irate and started cursing, and was instructed several times to go back to his 2006 Chevrolet Silverado and leave, but he refused.

CVE officer Darvin Marsillett said in his report that after Adkins refused to get in his vehicle and leave, he was instructed to put his hands behind his back, and he pulled away and tried to strike him with his fist.

Adkins also did not show proof of the vehicle registration or insurance to the vehicle he was driving, the report said.

Three people who were operating trucks owned by BJJR Trucking were also cited for traffic violations during the vehicle inspections.

Hogan said Monday that he didn't want to go into details regarding Adkins' arrest because he didn't want to try the case in the press.

"I don't want to go into that, but I can tell you that I have a completely different story," Hogan said. "It will all come out in court. Bub (Adkins) was there to bring the proof after he got a phone call from one of the drivers who had been pulled over. I received a copy of the proof that night at my home. At that time, they didn't have the overweight limit sticker, but they do now. They had everything else."

Hogan said CVE officers "lied" about his appearance onto the scene and didn't tell the whole story.

"They lied, I did not pull in there at a high rate of speed," Hogan said. "I pulled up behind them, got out of my car and went over to the car where (CVE Sergeant Nathan) Day was sitting. When I pulled up, Marsillett got out of his vehicle and he was all puffed up and Sergeant Day told him to get back into his car. I told Day that I was on the phone with the dad and that he was telling me he could provide documents of the proof they needed. I explained that I was there to try and assist the situation and they refused to wait for proof. I offered a solution and told them I had the dad on the phone and that they should allow him to bring the proof, let the trucks go and dump their load and go park until the documents could be verified. I suggested that they all meet in my office the next morning and if everything turned out to be legit, the citations could be dismissed in court and charges dropped on Bub and if he came to me trying to get a summons, I would refuse to give him one and they could do business as usual but if not, they could proceed to shut them down. Day called the captain, and I spoke to him on the phone and he said no, the trucks are going to be towed. They were going to tow those trucks no matter what and they didn't want to wait on proof. I'm not going to lie, I got a little firm with them and matter of fact after I spoke to them and they were so unwilling to listen. I told them this is the way its going to be and you can either look at the paperwork or not."

Additional supplements were included in the district court case file, including one from Marsillett and Day.

Marsillett said in the report that he and officer Jess Staggs made a traffic stop on a commercial tractor trailer owned by BJJR Trucking Inc. to perform a level two inspection. While conducting the inspection and finding out the extended weight decal expired in April 2012, two other BJJR trucks went by the traffic stop and that he left the traffic stop in order to make a traffic stop on the other two trucks that had just went past.

According to copies of documents provided by Hogan, the extended coal haul receipt is dated effective March 7; the Unified Carrier Registration was paid Feb. 21; commercial general liability insurance is effective from March 5, 2012, through March 5 of this year; and automobile liability effective from Dec. 27, 2012 through Dec. 27 of this year.

"After getting both trucks stopped, I instructed them to return to the first truck that was stopped and after getting back to the original traffic stop I observed a white Chevrolet pickup at the traffic stop," Marsillett said. "While approaching Staggs, I heard him instruct the male subject to return to his vehicle several times. After the male subject turned and walked away, I went to the next tractor trailer to get the paperwork for his truck and trailer and when I approached I observed the male subject that Staggs had instructed to return to his vehicle, standing on the side of the tractor trailer talking to the driver. I instructed the male subject to step down but he refused and I grabbed him by his right arm to turn him around and he took a swing at me in an attempt to strike me in the face but he missed and hit my left shoulder. I then pulled the male subject to the ground and placed him in handcuffs without further incident."

"I was at home sick with the flu, when all this was happening," Hogan said. "My secretary happened to see Bub (Adkins) in the hallway and she called me and told me that he had a knot on his head, that he had been arrested and that he had scrapes on his face as if he had been thrown onto the pavement. Then I got a call on my cell phone from his wife, and she was wanting to know what's going on and said that he had been arrested. I told her I'll take care of it and my idea of taking care of it was to get him released."

Hogan said he has known the Adkins for a long time, that they live in the same subdivision and that their children had gone to Trinity Christian Academy together.

"He's a good guy, and he's just trying to make it," Hogan said. "He was trying to bring them proof and they wouldn't take it. They actually refused it three times, once from Bub, once from his wife Amy and then from the dad through me."

Hogan said he got hold of the district judge and explained that Adkins was a good person and would show up to court and asked that he be released on an unsecured bond.

"It isn't uncommon to do that," Hogan said. "If you know the person, and they aren't a flight risk and will show up to court. It was my head on the chopping block. If he didn't show up, it would have been on me."

Hogan said later he got a phone call from Adkins' father saying the officers were down there impounding the trucks, which was why Hogan said he originally went to the scene.

"I told him I would go out there and see what I could do. He told me that he had all the proof that the trucks were legal to operate and that he could provide them if need be," Hogan said. "I said let me go talk to them. Those trucks weren't towed. They originally called for a tow truck, but they were on another run and so they got some different people to come and drive them to the DOT impound. If they thought the trucks were illegal, how come they could drive them like that? It had to be one of two things, they either knew the trucks were legal or they drove them thinking they weren't and ran the risk of being involved in an accident with no insurance and the trucks were overweight. They did not tow the vehicles to the impound, they got someone else to drive them."

Marsillett said in his supplemental report that Adkins, after being arrested, said he was sorry for what he had just done and that he was an "idiot" for doing it, then stated he was stupid for fighting with the officer, that it was his fault and could he let him go and they could just start over.

Marsillett said he placed Adkins in the back seat of his patrol car and asked his name, then CVE Officer Staggs made contact with Kentucky State Police Post 14 to advise them they had been in an altercation and asked for them to make contact with the supervisor and have him en route.

Day arrived at the traffic stop, and after asking what happened, went to the rear of Marsillett's patrol car and talked to Adkins before returning to his car, the report said.

Marsillett said in his supplemental report that two vehicles prior to Hogan's arrival stopped behind Sgt. Day's vehicle — first a female claiming to own the trucks and then a male who allegedly became irate with Day and later left after being instructed to get back to his vehicle.

Marsillett said in his supplemental report that after the two people left, he transported Adkins to the Lawrence County Sheriff's Office and turned him over to the Lawrence County jailer for transport to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center before returning to the scene of the traffic stop.

"Approximately 10 minutes later, a white Jeep pulled in behind Sgt. Day's vehicle at a high rate of speed. I observed a male subject get out of his vehicle and go to the rear of Sgt. Day's vehicle. I heard the male subject become loud and irate. After hearing the male subject I exited my patrol car and walked back to see what was going on. When I approached the male subject, he stated that we were going to let all of the vehicles go and the guys that were driving were going to drive them away," Marsillett said in his supplemental report. "The male subject then stated that it was getting ready to get bad and then he turned toward me pointing his finger in my face and stated that it was going to get even worse for me. Sgt. Day then told the male subject that he was not going to be making threats toward his officers and he told me to return back to my vehicle, that he would take care of it. I went back to my patrol car and completed my level two inspection. After the male left, I asked Sgt. Day who he was and he stated that he was the Lawrence County Attorney, Mike Hogan."

According to an additional report filed by Day, "a male subject wearing ball shorts, ball shoes, and a jacket came to the traffic stop driving a white Jeep Commander and walked up to the passenger side of his cruiser and asked who was in charge and appeared to be irate."

Day said in the report that he asked who he was and that he identified himself as "Lawrence County Attorney, Mike Hogan."

Day said in his supplemental report that Hogan questioned him about the incident and "was advised of the situation and the outcome of the incident."

"Hogan was advised that the Commercial Vehicles were going to be towed due to violations and he stated he was going to tell me how this situation was going to go," the report said. "He continued to inform me that we had to let the trucks go, let them dump and go back to their lot and park. Hogan advised all the citations and charges against Adkins was going to be dismissed in court without prejudice so that Officer Marsillett could not be sued since he initiated the charges against Adkins. Hogan stated he was in charge, or if we impounded the trucks he would still dismiss the citations and charges. Hogan said he would arrange for Adkins to file charges against officer Marsillett and a lawsuit in Circuit Court. I advised Hogan to calm down, at that time officer Marsillett walked up and Hogan advised that it was going to get bad out here and he pointed his finger at Officer Marsillett's face and advised him it was going to get real bad for him. I instructed Officer Marsillett to return to his inspection and I would take care of this issue. Hogan stated he worked for the people of Lawrence County and he was going to protect them and he did not work for the people in Frankfort. I advised Hogan to have a seat in his vehicle while I contacted Captain Joey Conn. I informed Captain Conn of the issue and he spoke briefly with Hogan on the phone, after the conversation with Captain Conn, Hogan stated you do what you need to do and I will do what I have to do and left the traffic stop."

"I did say I don't work for Frankfort," Hogan said in the BSN interview. "I stand by that. I work for the citizens of Lawrence County. I'm for law and order, regulatory issues, and you can't pull trucks over, then refuse documents and rough handle people."

Adkins said in a complaint dated Feb. 25 against Marsillett that "the defendant unlawfully and intentionally caused physical injury to the affiant to-wit: the defendant without provocation put affiant in a headlock, slammed him on the ground, and slammed his knee to his skull and back of neck."

After his arrest, Adkins' bond was set at $5,000 unsecured "per request of county attorney," and an order was issued to release the impounded vehicles.

Adkins was on the March 5 docket to appear for arraignment, but Assistant County Attorney Sean Perdue said in open court that Adkins' case had already been scheduled for a preliminary hearing March 27 at 11 a.m.

Marsillett was accompanied to the scheduled court appearance by several officers and an attorney, but his case wasn't on the docket because he had not yet been served with the complaint against him.

Perdue told the judge that in order to make it convenient for the officer, a hearing for Marsillett could be set for the same day as Adkins' if the officer is served.

Johnson cleanup set March 21-22

PAINTSVILLE — Commonwealth and PRIDE Cleanup is springing to life, and Johnson County “continues to make history by increasing their number of volunteers every year,” according to a press release from Johnson County Judge-Executive Tucker Daniel’s office.

“We know that the efforts of only a few go virtually unnoticed but when citizens team together, much is accomplished,” the release said.

On March 21 and 22, Ky. 172 in Johnson County has been targeted for cleanup. Volunteers from the Johnson County Road Department, the Kentucky Department of Highways at Staffordsville, the Division of Waste Management in Hazard, Jailer Doug Saylor, Constable Steve Rose, staff from Daniel’s office and other community volunteers are joining forces to begin this year’s spring cleanup.

“No one group can pick up litter from the intersection of SR 40 and SR 172 to the Morgan County line as well as some connecting roads along the way,” the release said. “But working as a team, Johnson Countians are making a difference.”

The judge’s office is urging “every citizen” in the county to “clean up around their own homes and along the roadside that fronts their property,” the release said.

“Can we count on you? Will you do your part? Several redbud trees have been planted, roadsides are being cleaned and it now becomes the responsibility of every citizen to keep their community a place we can all be proud of. Pick up, clean up, and report those caught littering. Johnson County’s beauty is coming to life — enjoy the scenery.”

For more information concerning this and other cleanups, contact solid waste coordinator Willard Burton at 789-2576 or programs and projects coordinator Lillian Wheeler at 789-2550.

PRIDE: Septic system replacement grants available

“These grants are for homeowners who want to do the right thing but can’t afford a septic system or sewer connection,” said PRIDE representative Tammie Wilson. “A good septic system or sewer service is critical for the health of homeowners and their neighbors. They protect the streams, rivers, lakes and groundwater we all share and they are also required by state law.”

The septic system grants, as part of PRIDE’s mission, are intended to improve the quality of life for homeowners and to improve the environment of southern and eastern Kentucky.

PRIDE encourages homeowners to apply for a grant if they own the home that needs a septic system or sewer connection. If they have electrical service at the home, the electric bill must show the physical address of the residence where they system will be installed, not a post office box. They are also eligible if the combined income of everyone living in the home qualifies under 55 percent of HUD poverty guidelines.

Rental, lease and land contract properties are not eligible for the grant program.

“Please be sure you give us everything asked for in the grant application,” Wilson said. “For example the application tells you to include copies of your recorded deed, your last electric bill and the proof of income for everyone living at the home. the proof of income can be a recent check stub, federal income tax statement or Social Security benefits statement.”

To request a grant application, call the PRIDE office toll free at 888-577-4339. Grant applications are also available from local PRIDE coordinators.

In Lawrence County, the PRIDE coordinators are Darrell Ratcliff, 606-638-4102; Louisa Mayor Teddy Preston, 606-638-4038; and Regina Jordan, city of Blaine.

In Martin County, PRIDE coordinators are Mike Crum, 606-298-2084; Terril Crum, City of Inez, 606-298-4602; and Rhonda Price, city of Warfield), 606-395-6423.

HOUSE: Redistricting plan stalled in Senate comprised of all of Elliott and Carter counties as well as part of Boyd County.

Carter County is currently in the 96th District and represented by Republican Jill York of Grayson. If the plan is approved by the full House, Adkins and York would face each other in the next House election.

The House redistricting plan approved last year but later ruled unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court split Lawrence County into two House districts, with 10 precincts moved into the 97th District while eight remained in the 99th District.

Other House districts in the Big Sandy region would not change drastically under HB 2.

The 97th District, represented by Democrat Hubert Collins of Wittenessville, currently includes all of Johnson and Martin counties along with parts of Floyd and Pike counties. Under the new plan, the district would include Johnson and Martin counties and part of Pike County.

The 95th District, which is represented by House Speaker Greg Stumbo of Prestonsburg, presently includes the remainder of Floyd County not represented by Collins. The new district would consist of all of Floyd County and part of Pike County.

All House Republicans voted against the plan because it would pit several incumbent Republicans against each other in an election.

A plan offered by Republican Rep. Joseph M. Fischer of Ft. Thomas failed in the Democratic-controlled House. It would have redrawn the 93rd District to include all of Lawrence and Martin counties and part of Pike County. It would also change the 97th District boundaries to include Johnson, Magoffin and Wolfe counties. A similar plan was defeated in 2012 in the House.

IN MEMORY

MYRTLE MAE BERRY

It’s been a year since you went away,
I miss you night and day.

Here on earth you did your best,
so the Lord thought you should rest.
I will come to see
you as soon as I can,
we will stroll across heaven hand in hand.

Its been a long year,
and I have shed many a tear
I miss you the most at Christmas time and birthdays.
But you got the greatest gift — better than I could give —
You got to go to heaven and be with Jesus to see where He lives.

—Sadly missed by husband and family

5 ways to find free Wi-Fi wherever you go

by Kim Komando

Kim Komando hosts the nation's largest talk radio show about consumer electronics, computers and the Internet.

When you're on the go, you want the ability to email and access important documents in the cloud with your smartphone, tablet or laptop. Maybe you just want to find a quiet spot to scan the news and sports headlines of the day.

At a free Wi-Fi hot spot, you can connect with little hassle, and you won't be using your cellular data plan and risking overage charges.

Unfortunately, finding free Wi-Fi hot spots isn't always easy. Spending just a few dollars a day for Wi-Fi access can add up pretty quickly and shoot a hole in your budget.

With the right tools, however, you'll never be too far from a free hot spot. You might have to walk another block or two, but the money you'll save will be worth it.

You may even find a new favorite coffee shop or restaurant! Just remember to stay safe. You want to turn off file sharing and be smart about mobile banking and shopping. Click here for ways to use public Wi-Fi safely.

1. Think outside the Wi-Fi box

Everyone knows they can get free Wi-Fi at McDonald's and Starbucks. But if you're trying to cut back on fries and cappuccinos, there are unexpected places you can try.

Truckers are some of the most connected workers on the planet, and they make sure their truck stops have speedy Internet access as well as decent food. Some independent truck stops offer free Wi-Fi to lure truckers away from the chains, which may charge a small fee.

Does your car need a wash or an oil change? Many auto shops offer free Wi-Fi to keep customers happy while they wait.

Don't forget libraries and other public places. City halls, courts and even parks frequently offer Wi-Fi connectivity. So do some grocery stores, which often have fine coffee bars and cafes of their own. Department stores and shopping malls are other options.

If you're in a new city or neighborhood, tap the Yelp! app on your tablet to summon a list of nearby restaurants and shops. Reviewers on Yelp! often point out which businesses have Wi-Fi available.

2. Join hotel loyalty programs and use coupons

Cadging a motel's open Wi-Fi network as a guest - or from the parking lot - was easy a few years ago. Not anymore. Many inns password-protect their networks and charge guests $10 or more a day for Wi-Fi access.

However, some chains offer complimentary Wi-Fi if you belong to their loyalty programs. Even if you're not booking a room, a sympathetic desk clerk or server might give you a password if you're a loyal customer.

You can also snag free Wi-Fi coupons from your favorite hotels at RetailMeNot when you're ready to book a stay.

3. Tap into Wi-Fi databases

When possible, it's best to look up free Wi-Fi hot spots in the area you plan to travel. That's where Wi-Fi databases come in handy.

The Wi-Fi FreeSpot Directory has thousands of free spots. It organizes hot spots by state or business and has special sections for airports and hotels. You

Weatherization crew aids in lower bills

Despite living miles away from each other and in separate counties, Jimmy Hall and Amanda McClanahan shared similar circumstances.

"The electric bill had been high for the last three or four years," says Hall, of Pike County. "It was $500 to $600 a month."

McClanahan, of Martin County, also struggled to heat her home.

"The electric bill was way up there," McClanahan says. "It had gotten close to $300."

Both Hall and McClanahan, however, recently applied to Big Sandy Area Community Action Program's Weatherization Assistance Program, which improves home energy consumption, reduces energy costs, and produces a healthier, safer, and more comfortable environment in eligible homes in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike counties.

After Hall, 48, was approved for the service, a weatherization evaluator completed an energy audit of his home. Then, the crew set to work making needed repairs including installing insulation, smoke alarms, and carbon monoxide detectors, placing a cover around the water heater, covering the ground under the mobile home with thick plastic, and coating vents with mastic.

"Mastic coats the inside of the vents, dries like hard rubber, and seals off air," explains BSACAP Weatherization Crew Leader James Moore. "The furnace is not going to run as long if the ducts are sealed with Mastic."

Moore continues, "Putting plastic on the ground helps reduce moisture, and a water heater cover cuts down on hot water and electricity by not working the water heater as hard."

The crew also put the equivalent of 12 inches of insulation beneath the home's floor.

"Covering the water heater and adding insulation will produce the biggest savings," Moore said.

Similar repairs were made to the home McClanahan shares with her teenage son and toddler daughter.

In addition to better insulating the home, laying plastic on the ground, hanging smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors, covering the water heater, and sealing the vents in McClanahan's home, the weatherization crew also replaced the furnace, a back door, and a front widow, repaired the floor, patched sheet rock on outside walls, coated the roof, and installed energy-saving light bulbs, storm windows, and a range hood.

According to BSACAP Weatherization Crew Leader Greg McCarty, the range hood will reduce moisture.

"The new range hood draws moisture and smoke out," McCarty said. "If moisture settles into sheet rock, it creates a mold issue."

The roof was coated to reflect the sun, which also will help heat the home.

McCarty says McClanahan will "tell a big difference" thanks to the weatherization repairs.

In fact, McClanahan started feeling a difference before the crew had completed their task.

"Before, it stayed chilly," she said. "I wore two pairs of socks yesterday."

"Now, you don't feel a cold draft coming in and I can play on the floor with her," McClanahan said as she motioned to her daughter. "My son appreciates the light bulbs. He says it's a lot brighter, but he says I burn him up now, too."

Hall's experience mirrors McClanahan's.

"They're still working, and it's already made a difference," Hall said. "It's hot in the back. Last night, I was sweating back there."

Hall added, "The crew's doing a great job."

McClanahan echoed Hall's sentiments.

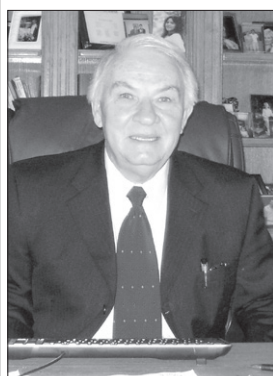

"It's helped us out a lot and I appreciate everything they've done," she says. "I'm grateful for it."

BIG SANDY AREA Community Action Program's Weatherization Assistance Program transformed Amanda McClanahan's home into a more comfortable and energy-efficient environment.

HEALTHY LIVING

HIGHLANDS HEALTH SYSTEM conducted a health fair for center employees and their families at the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Training Center. The Perkins Center is a division of the Kentucky Office of Vocational Rehabilitation (OVR) and serves those with disabilities, such as learning deficiencies, autism, Asperger's syndrome, traumatic brain injury, deaf, and physical disabilities, through numerous programs operated at the facility, designed to help consumers achieve their vocational goals. Approximately 40 attendees participated in the health fair, receiving lab work for fasting blood sugars, cholesterol, triglycerides, and A1C (for individuals with diabetes) and flu shots, all at no cost. Along with lab work, participants received educational information on health improvement and new services at Highlands.

HIGHLANDS HEALTH SYSTEM in conjunction with the Magoffin County Health Department held a health fair for local residents in the community. Approximately 60 attendees received numerous health screening and educational pieces, including lab work for blood sugar, cholesterol, and A1C levels, for known diabetics, and blood pressure checks. Information was provided on Highlands cardiac rehabilitation and cardio-diagnostic programs, and an announcement was made that Highlands After Hours Care would be open in the Magoffin Medical Plaza in late spring of this year. Consider adopting a senior pet

by Beverly Pack
LAWRENCE COUNTY HUMANE SOCIETY

We all know that kittens are just so darn cute and entertaining to watch...and who can resist those cute little inquisitive faces? But households who want a kitten just because they are "cute" or because the kids want a kitten usually soon lose interest in the new pet because — let's face it — all kittens grow up. As spring rapidly approaches, we encourage you to please consider the benefits of adopting an adult (or senior) cat as your newest member of the family.

Reasons to opt for the older kitty are many:

- Adult cats are litter box-trained. They know from years of experience that the litter box is the place to go.
- Kittens can be rowdy and even take dangerous risks. After all, they're still learning life's lessons and the consequences of their actions. An adult cat knows better, or doesn't have the desire to go on a trek up your curtains or to swat at your pet fish.

- Many people are fearful to adopt an older cat because they don't want to get attached

The Big Sandy Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program is currently seeking volunteers to serve as friendly visitors or certified ombudsman volunteers. An ombudsman is an advocate for residents of nursing homes, personal care homes, and family care homes. In addition to visiting long-term care facilities on a regular basis, an ombudsman strives to provide information and resolve complaints on behalf of residents. The Big Sandy Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program serves all long-term care residents in the Big Sandy area. A vital component of the Ombudsman Program is its volunteers. Volunteers provide community accountability to facilities. Volunteers can also be used to make friendly visits to residents and, after becoming certified, can handle complaints.

If you would like to be involved in improving the quality of care and life of residents of long-term care facilities or would like more information on becoming a volunteer, please contact Misty Pugh at 1-800-737-2723, extension 335, or send an e-mail to misty.pugh@bigsandy.org.

to a kitty that may not be in the best health. This is a myth. Many felines live well into their late teens and 20s — and they can live quite robust lives.

- Not only are senior cats' personalities well-established (so you know what temperament of cat you're getting) but they typically are much more mellow than a kitten. They're good for a cuddle or good as a "lap cat" — perfect for a senior, an empty nester, or even a busy professional who's worried about kitty getting into trouble while she or he is at work.

- Your new senior kitty will fit in well in any environment, because it doesn't take as much to get them accustomed to the "new." In addition, if you already have an older cat or dog at home, a senior cat playmate won't be as taxing to your existing pet as a feisty kitten. [Excerpts from "Reasons to Adopt a Senior Cat," by Michelle Leach, eHow Contributor, eHow.com]

Recently, a beautiful senior kitty came to our shelter who we named Martina. She was tattered, dirty, and very skinny, but she had a heart of gold. All this girl wanted was to be loved and to love back. After a thorough examination by the vet, Martina was placed in foster care so she could get lots of love and special attention. After a short period of time, the Shisler family of Kentucky saw her picture on our Facebook page and immediately fell in love with her. Today, Martina is living out her golden years in a loving, forever home where she gives her humans as much love as they unselfishly give her. Thank you to the Shisler family for seeing that adult and senior kitties deserve a loving, forever home too.

WI-FI: (Continued from A7)

can even find RV parks and campgrounds with hot spots. Instead of listing sites as a directory, the JiWire website lets you search by city, state and ZIP code and see hot spots plotted on a map. You can organize results to list paid hot spots, as well, though free is always going to be the best place to start. On the road, the JiWire App will tap into your phone's GPS to find you the closest free or paid hot spot. You can even navigate to it once you've picked it. If you find a location that isn't listed, you can submit it to JiWire's database right from the app.

4. Free Wi-Fi access from your cable company

If you use cable for Internet access at home, you may be surprised to know that many providers have dedicated hot spots in third-party businesses. You can sign on to a hot spot run by your ISP at no charge.

Check your provider's website. Most of them have handy maps where you can search for hot spots. Just enter a nearby ZIP code and take a peek. Some providers even have apps you can download that give Wi-Fi locations.

Even better, five major providers allow each other's customers to sign onto hot spots for free: Bright House Networks, Cox, Optimum, Time Warner and Xfinity.

Called the CableWiFi project, this alliance opens up more than 100,000 free hot spots nationwide.

5. Tether your phone

Tethering allows you to turn your smartphone's cellular Internet connection into a Wi-Fi hot spot for your tablet or laptop. It doesn't cost anything extra to tether if you have a shared data plan from Verizon or AT&T. If you never looked at saving money by switching to a shared data plan, use my data plan calculator.

Tethering is slower than regular Wi-Fi, and it'll use up your smartphone's battery and data. But it's great when you need a few minutes to securely send or receive a file from a tablet or laptop.

Android users who aren't on a shared data plan can try free third-party tethering apps like FoxFi or Easy Tether.
